Your Playing Days Are Over

Her Greatest Hits

FINALLY A DEFINITIVE COLLECTION
OF RUBY ANDREWS' 60's & 70's
CHICAGO SOUL MUSIC CLASSICS.

Ruby Andrews, born March 12, 1947 in Hollandale, Mississippi, is one of the finest stylists in soul music, having an equal ability to sing soft melodic songs and hard-driving, beat-laden ones. When she sings shouting-style, it is done with total control and a full, clear tone, yet with all the power and force the song demands.

Ruby Andrews's tuneful late-'60s sides established her as a seductive Windy City soul singer. Andrews debuted on the Zodiac label in 1967 and scored her biggest seller, "Casanova (Your Playing Days Are Over)" the same year. Successful followups on Zodiac included "You Made a Believer (Out of Me)" in 1969 and "Everybody Saw You" the next year. Andrews later cut some bluesy material for Ichiban, with the outrageous Swamp Dogg producing.

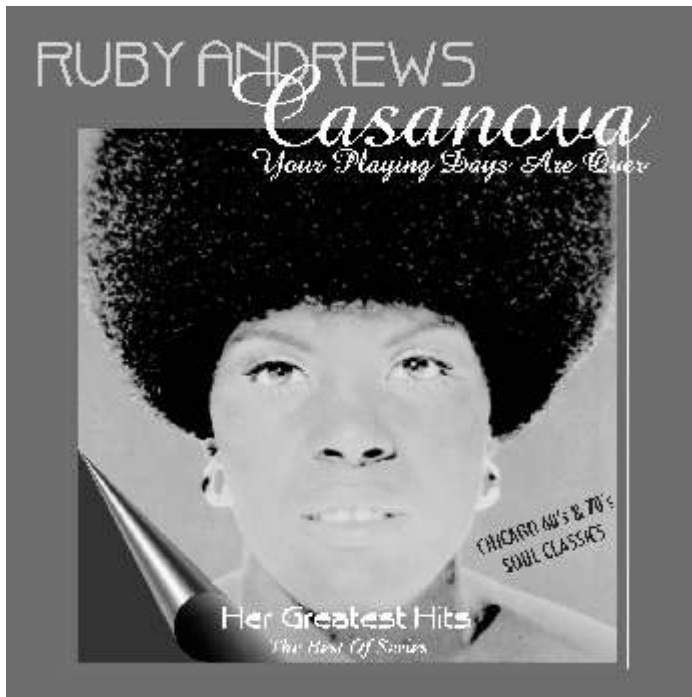

Her main producers/writers were Fred Bridges, Robert Eaton, and Richard Knight, the Brothers Of Soul group who had a hit in 1968 with "I Guess That Don't Make Me A Loser" remade here by Ruby.
